

CAREFUL ATTENTION IS REQUIRED FOR EWES AND LAMBS DURING COLD WEATHER

When Animals Are Allowed to Run in Open During Lambing Season Task of Shepherd Is Made More Difficult Than When Properly Housed—Construct Temporary Pens.

The busiest time in the whole year for the sheep raiser is when the lambs are being dropped, along in the latter part of the winter. The actual profits of the whole year's sheep raising are really being made at this time, and the shepherd is forced to work about twenty-four hours out of every twenty-four for a week or two.

During February and March, and sometimes during the last days of January, the good shepherd finds that practically every hour of his time is being taken up by the lambing ewes, says a Kentucky writer in the Farm Progress. Later in hand, he must visit the sheep once or twice during the night. When they are being allowed to run in the open his task is two and three times as difficult as when the sheep are being corralled in sheds and pens every night.

In order that help and care may be given every ewe and lamb that may need it, a try to visit every sheep in the flock about three or four times daily during the day, while the sheep may be in the open, and at least once at night, is a very important task.

the out-of-the-way corners, lambs may be unnoticed. They instinctively lie in half-concealment during the first hours of their existence.

When a lamb is left in this way when the sheep are corralled for the night, he is apt to wander off somewhere, tangle himself in the briars of a fence corner, or fall into some hole where he will not be found till after he has starved to death. Cold and exposure will kill a lamb in a few hours during the frosty nights.

Early in the winter months, when the lambs are to be expected, I set apart as much of the sheep sheds and shelters as can possibly be spared and divide them off into temporary pens. These I use for the ewes immediately after they have dropped their lambs. This year I took a three-four foot wide along the east wall of a long sheep shed and fenced it off from the rest of the interior. By dividing this long space into little pens, five feet long, I gave room for a dozen ewes and their lambs. A good thing as it is, it is not perfect. I have seen a lamb get out of a pen and wander off into the open, but I have not seen a lamb get out of a pen and wander off into the open.

CARING FOR BREEDING EWES

Greatest Certainty of Impregnation Is Attained When Animal Is Increasing in Flesh.

The relation between the nature of the high crop and the management of the ewes at the time of mating is closer than is usually supposed, says a sheep grower in the Iowa Home. When the ewes are overfat at such a time, or when they are on pastures dry and dead, impregnation is less certain than when the opposite conditions prevail. When the ewes are fat, the flesh at such a time, it becomes even less certain.

The greatest certainty in breeding is attained when the ewes are increasing in flesh. The time when the ewes are increasing in flesh is the time when the ewes are increasing in flesh. The time when the ewes are increasing in flesh is the time when the ewes are increasing in flesh.

The annual meeting of the Good Fellowship club was held at the home of Mrs. T. W. Hanson and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Miss Case; vice president, Mrs. Ann Hanson; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Trombley. After the meeting had adjourned delicious refreshments were served.

There was a special party given by the Grayling social club at their rooms last Friday evening, in honor of E. Jensen, of Even. There were about 60 present and the evening was spent in card playing and dancing. An excellent banquet was served and altogether it was a most delightful affair. Mr. Jensen left for Even on the early train next morning.

Two prizes are offered, one to a boy and one to a girl, for the best essays on the life of David Livingstone, whose birthday will be celebrated at the Methodist-Episcopal Sunday school on Easter Sunday. The essays will be publicly read and the collection will be for foreign missions. If you want the honor of helping convert a heathen, take part in this celebration.

Mrs. Victor Salling and Miss Salling were "at home" to a number of their friends on Thursday afternoon. There were about 30 ladies present and the afternoon was delightfully spent playing "500" after which a fine supper was served. Mrs. Charles Canfield received first prize and Mrs. Olaf Michelson, second prize. The party was another of the many enjoyable social occasions of this winter.

The annual meeting of the stockholders and members of the Grayling Social club was held at the club rooms one night last week. C. L. Trombley, the retiring director was elected to succeed himself. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: A. B. Michelson, president; O. W. Hanson, secretary and Robert Reagan, treasurer; T. W. Hanson is the retiring president, after two years of service, and Fred Michelson the retiring secretary.

Owing to the unusual large amount of advertising in this paper last week, some of which came in at the last hour, we were compelled to leave out considerable amount of news. This we regret very much. It is unusual at this time of the year to be short of space. While we like the advertising patronage, we are just as anxious to serve our readers with all the news of importance that comes within our jurisdiction. All of our correspondence was left out and more than a column of local news that was already in type besides a lot of items ready for the compositor.

Last week we received an unsigned communication that was meant for publication. If the statements of conditions in a certain home here are true it certainly is ignominious. The letter gives no names and no clue to the identity of the parties referred to, and while there is considerable merit to the article, it would be unjust for us to publish it. The fact that an article comes to us anonymous always leaves room for doubt as to its validity. If a writer cannot take the sponsorship for a contribution by attaching his signature, certainly a newspaper, that is read by thousands cannot take the responsibility. We welcome communications from others, that have a newsy or local interest, but we must insist upon knowing their source.

The village caucus was held at the town hall last Thursday evening. As usual it was non-partisan. It was unusually well attended. The meeting was brief as all candidates were nominated by acclamation. The meeting was called to order by chairman C. O. McCullough who was elected temporary chairman. Following is the ticket:

For president, T. W. Hanson.
For clerk, Carl Mork.
For treasurer, M. Hanson.
For assessor, James Sorenson.
For 1st trustee, Adahart Taylor.
For 2nd trustee, Scott Loader.
For 3rd trustee, H. Peterson.
It is a deserving compliment to the retiring officers of our village, to be unanimously re-elected. It is evidence of good service on their parts, and the repose of confidence by our voters. C. O. McCullough was elected chairman of the village committee and Dr. S. M. Inley and Adahart Jorgenson second and third members respectively.

At the village council meeting held last Monday night, three important matters came up for consideration. One was the establishing of fire limits within the village, to take in the business blocks and certain residence portions, within which all new buildings and material repairs must be of fire proof construction. Another matter considered was that of collecting dog tax. The pound master will have implicit instructions to remove all dogs within the city limits that don't wear a license tag. The other consideration was for prohibiting of the running at large of chickens within the city limits. The steady growth of the village brings on new conditions that must be met. These are conditions that have come up in nearly every growing community, and it has also developed that in the end, everybody was satisfied. Grayling has passed the stage of a country village and changing conditions demand new administrative regulations.

Tuesday last Congressman George A. Loud of this district became a private citizen. At high noon that day he completed ten years of continuous service as a member of Congress, and representative from the Tenth District of Michigan—the longest period this district has ever been represented by any one man. Whatever may exist of political prejudice, or partisan bias whatever of disappointment on the part of any citizen of the Tenth District, growing out of the services of Mr. Loud, there can be no serious doubt that his retirement will cause many expressions of regret, and the general and unprejudiced verdict will be "well done good and faithful servant." In the wrap and wool of our politic system, it may often be truthfully said, "Republicans are ingrateful," but in the calm light of subsequent history, the people place a true value on the genuine merit, honesty of purpose, and patriotic endeavor. With no special preparation or experience for public life, the Hon. George A. Loud entered upon his public career ten years ago. He will be remembered for his honesty, his industry, his unselfish devotion and faithful application to duty. He will be remembered for the All Together distinguished services, he has rendered his state and the nation, just like the true American he is. Is not such a record compensation enough? D. C. HUMAN HAPPINESS BUT BRIEF

Fortunate indeed are those of us able to secure even a short space of real joy.

It happens that there are few, if any, human beings among us who are completely and rapturously happy for any length of time. Lovers in each other's arms, benefactors relieving suffering, mothers clasping their babies, actor and poet under the fresh laurels of triumph—all these know surely what the ecstasy of bliss is.

But the child leaves the mother's arms; the benefactors receive ingratitude; the actors or the artist finds that one warm heart had been better than the hollow ring of all those plaudits and the ecstasy with all has been brief.

And that is what the man is about—that it cannot last all the time, as it is in a world that "spins forever down the ringing grooves of change," every moment, with its invisible forces, must not pull the present combination apart to effect a new one, and as it were anything but childish kicking against a wall to remonstrate or complain of the inevitable, for by submitting and trying to make the best of it something, at any rate, is to be gained.

It being conceded, then, that every lot in life has its bitterness, while "laughter shall be mingled with sorrow, and mourning take hold of the end of joy," that corded care beset the possession of our best earthly treasures, it becomes a self-evident truth that the chief relief from that lot is to cease to consider it.

As a youth, death by a garment, and a worn by the wood, so the sadness of a man's condition the heart, says the Latin Vulgate, and we can forget our own sadness best by grieving over the sadness of another, by rejoicing over another's joy—Ex-change.

Duke of Wellington's Charger.

From an entry in "Lady Shelley's Diaries," it appears that Copenhagen, the famous war charger of the duke of Wellington, had something of the constitution of his master.

The day before the battle of Waterloo the duke rode Copenhagen to the Prussian headquarters to ascertain whether he might depend upon old Blucher's co-operation. The duke rode Copenhagen on June 17 over 60 miles.

On the 18th he rode Copenhagen throughout the entire battle, and the next day rode him to Brussels.

When the duke dismounted, Copenhagen "kicked up his heels and scampered half over the town before he was caught."

One day in Paris Lady Shelley rode with the duke, who offered to mount her on Copenhagen. "But," she confesses, "I found Copenhagen the most difficult horse to sit of any I had ever ridden. He the duke had not been there I should have been frightened."

"I believe," he said, "you think the glory greater than the pleasure in riding him."

"I ate a worm," said the little tot in the kindergarten.

The teacher, thinking that perhaps the child had really done such a thing, protested warmly over the undesirability of the proceeding. "Why, just think," she said, "as a final argument, how badly the mamma worm felt to have her little baby eaten up."

"I ate a mamma worm," was the triumphant rejoinder that proved too much for the teacher. Harper's Magazine.

"Yes, that's all well enough," said the barman, "but you've got to pay something here for the luxurious surroundings—the velvet seats and the mirrors and the beautiful pictures on the wall, and all that."

"Next day Sandy went into the same place again, ordered a drink and put down three pence. It was a different barman, but he protested.

"No, no," said Sandy, "no, no, mon; that's all right. I saw yer pictures yesterday."—Tit-Bits.

Not That Crazy.

"This bill is too high," said the man to his lawyer.

"But didn't I prove to the court that you were crazy and get you acquitted?" replied the lawyer.

"You did. But you could never prove that I'm crazy enough to pay such a bill as that."

TAFT PLEADS FOR A BUDGET

Offers Congress Plan to Wipe Out U. S. Debt in 20 Years.

President Taft sent to congress his much-discussed message, recommending the adoption of a budget system of relating proposed expenditures to expected revenues.

To carry out the budget plan, to reduce the deficit and the fixed charges against the government the president proposed:

To create a sinking fund commission to assist the chairman of the finance committee of the senate; the chairman of the house ways and means committee; the attorney general and the secretary of the treasury, with the comptroller of the treasury as an auditor of the sinking fund account.

Legislation which would wipe out the national debt in 20 years after July 1, 1914, congress should set aside $45,000,000 annually for that purpose. That would be $15,000,000 a year less than the present amount required by laws. The fund should be invested in three per cent government bonds and in 20 years the $15,000,000 debt the president says, would be retired.

Some of the advantages of the budget system as pointed out by the president were:

A means of locating responsibility for estimates in keeping with revenue.

A means of allowing congress to see how much gross it will have to spend before it begins appropriating for each department or detail of government machinery.

Because it would furnish congress and the public with ready reference to reports and detailed records of account.

To aid in working with a well defined purpose in many bureaus hitherto organized but directed under an inconsistent and ill-defined program.

To cancel the nation's debt, through a sinking fund, and to eliminate the deficit, which is slowly growing.

State Tax Commissioners O. F. Barnes and Thomas D. Kearney were in the city planning to begin the re-assessing of Bay county.

There is no such thing as an ideal college man in Albion college, according to the report of the Social Science club. It costs the fraternity man $71.40 per year more than it does the student who avoids fraternities.

The state tax commission experts have covered the east side of Saginaw in their revaluation of Saginaw and have boosted 1,500 houses. Business blocks in the downtown districts are being boosted $50,000 at a time, and the valuation of the entire city will be increased several millions.

Twenty or more students of the Muskegon high school face expulsion as a result of the discovery that they are members of Greek letter fraternities maintained in the school in violation of a state law.

ASKS FOR LIFE TERMS

British Prosecutor Asks That Militant Suffragettes Be Given Limit.

Militant suffragettes connected with the burning of buildings in public parks are liable to "penal servitude for life." This was the announcement in London of Travers Humphreys, public prosecutor, in asking the magistrate at the Kew police court to commit for trial Miss Lillian Lenton and Miss Joyce Locke. The two were arrested Feb. 20 for setting fire to a pavilion in the Kew botanical gardens.

"I make my charge," said Mr. Humphreys, "under the malicious damage act, which makes it a felony punishable by penal servitude for life for any person to fire a building belonging to the king or devoted to public use."

Suffragette "Army" Arrives in Washington.

Gen. Rosalie Jones and her suffrage "army" marched triumphantly into Washington through the capitol grounds and down Pennsylvania avenue with an escort of local enthusiasts for estimates in keeping with revenue.

A presidential inauguration could hardly have presented a more enthusiastic spectacle than Pennsylvania avenue from the capitol to the treasury building after the plucky, disheveled band of suffrage pilgrims swung warily around the police mounting for the final march of their 250-mile walk for the cause of equal franchise.

Incoming presidents have not frequently been more clamorous applicants than did the company of brown-clad women, huddled in a little group, forced to light their way through veritable walls of shouting humanity for more than a mile of their historic "hike."

New Wilson Plan Stirs Legislators.

Lively discussion was precipitated in congressional circles, by a published statement credited to President-elect Wilson that he intended to spend part of each working day in the president's room at the capitol, to keep in closer touch with legislative affairs. Such action on the part of the president would overturn a precedent which has restricted the president's visits to the capitol to the last hours of a session of congress.

Democrat leaders discussed the reported plan of Mr. Wilson with reluctance though many seemed to favor it, and others qualified their expressions.

"If President Wilson wishes to come to the capitol and advise with congress he will be welcome," said Senator O'Gorman.

H. F. Wills, of Logansport, Ind., has applied to the council for permission to lay pipes in Saginaw streets for a central heating plant.

The waves washed up a well preserved body north of the life-saving station at Racine, Wis. In the pocket was found a pay envelope bearing the name of Charles Carp and the imprint of the American National bank, Muskegon, Mich., dated Feb. 18.

Seized by an apparently slight illness three weeks ago, Mrs. D. V. W. Russell, of Menominee, predicted she would die on her fiftieth birthday. Mrs. Russell then directed arrangements for her funeral. The birthday arrived, and shortly after midnight Mrs. Russell expired.

Within a few days 6,000 pounds of seed vetch seed, a fertilizer, will be composed of natives of the Wolverine state now resident here. Officers have been elected as follows: President, Marshall Hale; vice president, Col. Anderson; secretary, A. Denton; treasurer, C. W. Whitney.

15 KILLED IN HOTEL FIRE

Many Guests Are Caught as Roof Collapses in Omaha Fire.

Fire, believed to have been caused by a gas explosion, cost 15 or more lives in Omaha, Neb., and caused a loss of $250,000. The Dewey hotel, a second class hostelry at Thirtieth and Farnam streets, was destroyed by fire which swept the three-story building with a speed that precluded attempts at rescue. Some of the guests had time to reach the stairway, but others were caught by the collapsing roof of the structure before they could be rescued from window sills on which they had taken refuge.

Several victims jumped or fell from windows and met either instant death or mortal injury.

WOODROW WILSON MADE PRESIDENT

Many thousands witness his induction into office.

CEREMONIES ARE IMPRESSIVE

New Executive of Nation Takes Oath on East Portico of Capitol After Marshall Becomes Vice-President.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington, March 4.—Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey is president of the United States and Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana is vice-president. The instant that the oath-taking ceremonies at noon today in front of the capitol were completed, the Democratic party of this country "came into its own" again after an absence of sixteen years from the precincts of executive power.

A throng of many thousands of people witnessed the newly elected president's induction into office. Nineteen of the members of the crowd were enthusiastically joyful, as becoming good American citizens watching a governmental change ordered in accordance with the law and the Constitution.

The Bible which during each successive four years is kept as one of the treasures of the Supreme court, was the immediate instrument of the oath-taking of Woodrow Wilson. Edward Douglas White, chief justice of the United States, held the Book for Mr. Wilson to rest his hands upon while he made solemn covenant to support the Constitution and the laws of the United States and to fulfill the duties of his office as well and as faithfully as it lay within his power to do.

Thomas Riley Marshall swore fealty to the Constitution and to the people in the senate chamber, where for four years it will be his duty to preside over the deliberations of the members of the upper house of congress.

Ceremonies Simple and Impressive. Both of the ceremonies proper were conducted in a severely simple but most impressive manner. The surroundings of the scene of the president's induction into office, however, were not so simple, for it was an out-of-door event and the great gathering of military, naval and uniformed civil organizations gave much more than a touch of splendor to the scene.

President Taft and President-elect Wilson rode together from the White House to the capitol, accompanied by two members of the congressional committee of arrangements. The vice-president-elect also rode from the White House to the capitol and in the carriage with him were the senate's president pro tempore, Senator Bacon of Georgia, and three members of the congressional committee of arrangements.

Ceremony in Senate Chamber. The addition to the senate chamber to witness the oath-taking of the vice-president was by ticket, and it is needless to say every seat was occupied. On the floor of the chamber were many former members of the senate who, because of the fact that they once held membership in that body, were given the privileges of the floor. After the hall was filled, and all the minor officials of government and those privileged to witness the ceremonies were seated, William H. Taft and Woodrow Wilson, preceded by the congressional committee of arrangements, entered the senate chamber. They were followed immediately by Vice-President-elect Thomas R. Marshall, leaning

WILSON HONORED BY FINE PARADE

New President Reviews Immense
Inaugural Procession.

AVENUE A GLORIOUS SIGHT

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington, March 4.—Woodrow Wilson, as ex-president of Princeton, rode down Pennsylvania avenue today, and later rode up the same avenue as president of the United States, and as the highest officer of government a few minutes thereafter reviewed the multitudes of soldiers and civilians which, with playing bands and flying flags, marched by to give him proper official and personal honor.

For several flights Pennsylvania avenue has been a glory of light. Today it was a glory of color, movement and music. There are 300,000 inhabitants of the city of Washington. Its temporary population is nearer the half million mark. The absentees from the flanking lines of the parade were mostly the policemen, who were given orders to protect the temporarily vacated residences of the capital.

Woodrow Wilson asked that "Jeffersonian simplicity" be observed in all things which had to do with his inauguration. The command for Jeffersonian simplicity seems to be susceptible to elastic construction. There was nothing savoring of courts or royalty, but there was evidence in plenty that the American people love uniform and all kinds of display which can find a place within the limits of democratic definition. It was a good parade and a great occasion generally.

Thronged Vocaliferous With Joy. The inhibition of the inaugural ball and of the planned public reception at the capitol had no effect as a bar to the attendance at this ceremony of changing presidents. Masses were here to see, and other masses were here to march. There was a greater demonstration while the procession was passing than there was four years ago. Victory had come to a party which had known nothing like victory for a good many years. The joy of possession

Wilson found expression in steady and abundantly noisy acclaim. President Taft and President-elect Wilson were escorted down the avenue by the National Guard troop of cavalry of Essex county, New Jersey. The carriage in which rode Vice-President-elect Marshall and President pro tempore Bacon of the United States senate was surrounded by the members of the Black Horse troop of the Culver Military academy of Indiana. This is the first time in the history of inaugural ceremonies that a guard of honor has escorted a vice-president to the scene of his oath-taking.

Parade a Monster Affair. The military and the civil parade, a huge affair which stretched its length for miles along the Washington streets, formed on the avenues radiating from the capitol. After President-elect Wilson had become President Wilson and Vice-President-elect Marshall had become Vice-President Marshall, they went straightway from the capitol to the White House and thence shortly to the reviewing stand in the park at the mansion's front.

The parade, with Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, United States army, as its grand marshal, started from the capitol grounds to move along the avenue to the White House, where it was to pass in review. The trumpeter sounded "forward march" at the instant the signal was flashed from the White House that in fifteen minutes the newly elected president and commander-in-chief of the armies and navies of the United States would be ready to review "his troops."

It was thought that the parade might lack some of the picturesque features which particularly appealed to the people on former occasions. There were Indians and rough riders here not only when Roosevelt was inaugurated, but when he went out of office and was succeeded by William H. Taft. The parade, however, in honor of Mr. Wilson seemed to be picturesque enough in its features to appeal to the multitudes. They certainly made noise enough over it.

The procession was in divisions, with General Wood as the grand marshal of the whole affair and having a place at its head. The display in the words invariably used on like occasions, was "impressive and brilliant."

Regulars in First Division. The regulars of the country's two armed services naturally had the right of way. Maj.-Gen. W. W. Wetherston, United States army, was in command of the first division, in which marched the soldiers and sailors and marines from the posts and the navy yards within a day's ride of Washington. The West Point cadets and the midshipmen from the naval academy at Annapolis, competent beyond other corps in manual and in evolution, the future generals and admirals of the army, had places in the first division.

All branches of the army services were represented in the body of regulars—engineers, artillery, cavalry, infantry and signal corps. The sailors and marines from half a dozen battle-ships rolled along smartly in the wake of their landmen brethren.

The National Guard division followed the division of regulars. It was commanded by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Mills, United States army, who wore the medal of honor given him for conspicuous personal gallantry at the battle of San Juan hill. General Mills is the chief of the militia division of the United States war department.

The entire National Guard of New Jersey was in line, and Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Maine and North Carolina were represented by bodies of civilian soldiers. Cadets from many of the private and state military schools of the country had a place in the militia division. Among them were boys from the Virginia Military institute, the Culver Military Academy of Indiana, the Carlisle school, Purdue university, the Citadel cadets and the Georgia Military academy.

Veterans and Civilians. The third division of the parade was composed of Grand Army of the Republic veterans, members of the Union Veterans league and of the Spanish war organizations. Gen. James B. Stuart of Chicago, a veteran of both the Civil and the Spanish wars, was in command.

Robert N. Harper, chief marshal of the civic forces, commanded the fourth division. Under his charge were political organizations from all parts of the country, among them being Tammany, represented by 2,000 of its braves, and Democratic clubs from Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

They put the American Indians into the civilian division. The fact that they were in war paint and feathers helped out in picturesque and did nothing to disturb the peace. Members of the United Hunt Clubs of America rode in this division. Their pink coats and their high hats apparently were not thought to jar "Jeffersonian simplicity" from its seat. Pink coats were worn on the hunting field in Jefferson's day and in Jefferson's state.

There were 1,000 Princeton students in the civic section of the parade. Many of them wore orange and black

LISTENING TO AN INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

TALES OF OTHER INAUGURATIONS

Incidents That Marked the Day in Former Years.

WASHINGTON'S OATH-TAKING

New York Scene of His Induction—Story of Jefferson's Simplicity a Myth—"People's Day" When Jackson Took Office.

By E. W. PICKARD.

Woodrow Wilson is the twenty-seventh man to be inaugurated president of the United States, but the twenty-fifth to be inaugurated in Washington. George Washington took the oath of office in New York and John Adams in Philadelphia. Moreover, the Father of His Country was not inaugurated on March 4.

Arriving at Elizabethtown Point, N. J., on April 23, he entered a barge rowed by 750 pilots, clad in white, and passed through the Kill von Kull into New York harbor, which was full of all manner of craft gaily decorated and loaded with cheering crowds. The Spanish man of war Galveston broke out the colors of all nations, and fired a salute of 13 guns, to which the American frigate North Carolina responded.

Arrival at New York. As Washington stepped ashore at Murray's wharf the guns of the Battery roared out their salute and Gov. George Clinton and many members of congress saluted the first president. He was taken to the residence of Samuel Osgood, and for an entire week there was revelry throughout the city.

Finally, on April 30, all was ready for the inauguration. Washington was escorted to Federal hall, then the capitol, which stood on the site of the present sub-treasury at Wall and broad streets. The streets had been filled since sunrise with waiting crowds, and the enthusiasm was intense. In the senate chamber Washington was joined by Adams, Knox, Hamilton, von Steuben and a few others, and all of them appeared on the balcony. Robert R. Livingston, chancellor of New York, administered the oath and cried "Long live George Washington, president of the United States," whereupon there broke out a mighty tumult of cheering, bell-ringing and the noise of cannon. Returning to the senate chamber, President-elect Washington read his inaugural address and the history of the United States under the constitution began.

Myth About Jefferson. If you are a good Democrat, no doubt you believe that Thomas Jefferson rode unattended to the capitol on horseback, tied his horse to the fence, and was inaugurated with less ceremony than would attend the taking of office by a keeper of a dog-pound. Such is the old story, but it is pure myth. It is first found in a book of travels in the United States, written by John Davis, an Englishman, who admitted that he was an eyes-witness to the simple ceremony which he described, but it has been proved that the story was not in Washington at the time.

The inauguration of Jefferson, which marked the defeat of the Federalist party, of Hamilton, Washington, Adams and Jay, was the first to take place in Washington. The newly established national capitol, then but a few months old, contained only 3,000 inhabitants, many of them negroes, the houses were mostly huts and the streets muddy roads. The big event was thus described in the Philadelphia Aurora of March 11, 1801:

"At an early hour on Wednesday, March 4, the city of Washington presented a spectacle of uncommon animation occasioned by the addition to its usual population of a large body of citizens from the adjacent districts. At 10 o'clock the company of Washington artillery, armed in the day, and about one o'clock the Alexandria company of riflemen with the company of artillery paraded in front of the President's lodgings. At 12 o'clock Thomas Jefferson, attended by a number of his fellow citizens, among whom were many members of congress, repaired to the capitol. His dress was, as usual, that of a plain citizen, without any distinctive badge of office. He entered the capitol under a discharge from the artillery. As soon as he withdrew a discharge from the artillery was made. The remainder of the day was devoted to purposes of festivity, and at night there was a pretty general illumination."

When Andrew Jackson was elected in the fall of 1828 the people of the west and the radical elements of the south scored a triumph and he was hailed as a "man of the people." This character was emphasized on the day of his inauguration the following March, for never before had such a huge motley throng gathered in Washington. Jackson's wife had died not long before, and he asked that the ceremonies be made very simple, but the masses were too numerous to heed the request, and the weather was pleasant and the east front of the capitol was used for the first time for the inauguration. In front of it surged 10,000 persons who were restrained only by a great iron chain. Jackson rode to the capitol on a white horse and went through the ceremonies with dignity and started back to the White House. Then began his troubles, for the people broke loose with a vengeance.

The president was literally pursued by a motley concourse of people, riding, running, helter-skelter, striving who should first gain admittance into the executive mansion, where it was understood that refreshments would be distributed. wrote a contemporary, Mrs. Samuel Harrison Smith. In their mad rush the crowds smashed furniture and dishes and seized the food as if they were starving. The confusion became more and more appalling. At one moment the president, who had retreated into the apartment, could only be secured against serious danger by a number of gentlemen linking arms and forming themselves into a barrier. It was then that the windows were thrown open, and the living throng found an outlet. It was the people's day, the people's president, and the people would rule.

Exposure Killed Harrison. For 12 years the Democrats controlled the destinies of the country, and then the Whigs elected William Henry Harrison, who was inaugurated March 4, 1841. By this time transportation was made easier by the building of railways and the crowd that flocked to Washington was immense. It was much better behaved than that which "honored" Jackson, but it was hungry for refreshments.

Cold, wintry blasts swept the streets of Washington that March day, and Harrison, already old and rather feeble, rode his white horse without cloak or overcoat, and with his hat off in salute to the cheering crowds. The line of march was unbrokenly long, and so was the inaugural address, and then the president led the procession back to the White House. The exposure was too much for him and within one month he was dead.

Lincoln's First Inauguration. Immensely dramatic was the first inauguration of Abraham Lincoln in 1861. From the day of his election threats against his life were numerous, and detectives discovered and foiled an organized plot to assassinate him on his way to Washington. The big bodies of troops that had been employed at former inaugurations merely to add pomp to the occasion now were used for the protection of the president. As he rode to the capitol in a carriage he was preceded by a double file of sappers and miners, and in the rear were infantry and riflemen. On horse tops and in windows all along Pennsylvania avenue were posted riflemen.

The day had opened cloudy, chilly and dismal, but as the president stepped forward to take the oath, from the aged Chief Justice Taney the sun burst through the clouds and shone full on the bowed head of the man who was to give up his life for the country he loved. Lincoln himself noticed this "sunburst" and drew from it a happy augury.

In Recent Years. The inaugurations of Cleveland and Roosevelt are too recent to need telling. To the former the Democrats flocked in tremendous numbers. Washington entertained 100,000 visitors that day, and 25,000 persons marched in the parade. Colonel Roosevelt's inauguration attracted another immense throng, and was made especially picturesque by the Rough Riders and other Spanish war veterans who appeared in the procession.

It one wishes to stir the wrath of the "weather man" in Washington, it is only necessary to mention March 4, 1909, when William Howard Taft was inducted into the office of president. Every preparation had been made for an imposing ceremonial and parade, but the entire affair was spoiled by a fierce blizzard and snowstorm that swept over the national capital. The weather bureau was caught napping, and gave no smallest hint of the coming storm. The parade was held after a fashion, but the ceremony of inaugurating the president had to be transferred from the front of the capitol to the senate chamber, where but few could gain admittance to witness them. The weather bureau will not hear the last of that blizzard in this generation.

Mr. R. M. Fleenor, R. F. D. 39, Otterbein, Ind., writes: "I had been a sufferer from Kidney Trouble for about 25 years. I finally got so bad that I had to quit work, and doctors failed to do me any good. I kept getting worse all the time, and at last turned to inflammation of the bladder, and I had given up all hope, when one day I received your little booklet advertising R. M. DIDN'T PROVE AN EXCEPTION

Photographer Thought He Was Going to Escape Ancient Joke, but It Was Not to Be.

"That fellow who just went out of here after having his photograph taken is a marvel," remarked a photographer to a bystanding friend. "A great mind to give him that size of a dozen cabinet size free."

"What's his special point?" asked the friend.

"Why, there've been in this studio, since I started some years ago, about 18,000 and some others," went on the photographer. "And out of that number, I have found just one—the only one who hasn't asked to have a grin as I posed him; look out, or I'll break your camera! I've begun to look upon it as an essential part of taking a photograph and I didn't hear it at the right time. I do believe I'd unconsciously wait for it before I snapped the shutter. But that fellow didn't say a word, just stood up there and got snapped like it was a—"

"Say, partner," interrupted a voice from the door, which just then opened and admitted the head of the lately departed customer. "Say, I hope I didn't break that there camera of yours."

CLEAR HEADED Head Bookkeeper Must Be Reliable.

The chief bookkeeper in a large business house in one of our great Western cities speaks of the harm coffee did for him. (Tea is just as injurious because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"My wife and I drank our first cup of Postum a little over two years ago and we have lived ever since to the entire exclusion of tea and coffee. It happened in this way:

"About three and a half years ago I had an attack of pneumonia, which left a memento in the shape of dyspepsia, or, rather, to speak more correctly, neuralgia of the stomach. My cup of cheer had always been coffee or tea, but I became convinced, after a time, that they aggravated my stomach trouble. I happened to mention the matter to my grocer one day and he suggested that I give Postum a trial.

"Next day it came, but the cook made the mistake of not boiling it sufficiently, and we did not like it much. This was, however, soon remedied, and now we like it so much that we will never change back. Postum, being a food-beverage instead of a drug, has been the means of banishing my stomach trouble. I verily believe, for I am a well man today and have used no medicine.

"My work as chief bookkeeper in our Co.'s branch house here is of a very confining nature. During my coffee-drinking days I was 'subject to nervousness and the blues.' These have left me since I began using Postum, and I can conscientiously recommend it to those whose work confines them to long hours of severe mental exertion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in plain English.
